Carmelites Recall Lotta's Visit Here

The death of Lotta Crabtree, who died in Boston last week, was quite a shock to Carmelites who made her acquaintance when she was here in November, 1915, when she was a guest of Pine Inn for two weeks, following a strenuous round of activities at the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

Having learned of Lotta's intense love for the California poppy, George H. Shields, who was manager of Pine Inn at the time, sent her a gorgeous bunch of the golden flowers.

Accompanying the flowers was the following letter:

"We send you these from a farm which has grown into existence since you learned to love California, grown up alongside of Carmel Mission, where we buried the remains of the sainted Junipero Serra, the first white man to love California. We love you because you love our San Francisco, and we want your desire for poppies to be gratified."

It was after Lotta received the flowers that she came to Carmel. An article concerning Lotta was published in the Pine Cone, and concluded with this paragraph:

"A fair exchange is no robbery. We sent Lotta Carmel poppies, and now Carmel has Lotta."

Russell Did Not Miss Very Much

"I passed many times The Bloomin' Basement. Many times I wondered what it could be. But all I could see were attractive samples of the ornamental sex coming out of it. It turned out to be a flower shop where they specialize in landscape gardening.

"Perhaps the most charming woman in Carmel is Tilly Polak, who sells 'antiques.' Though she has many competitors in the art village, her smile and her ever gracious personality would overcome all competition.

"Carmel weavers—hand-loom fabrics. Here 'Penelope' Kuster, surrounded by her assistants, revives an ancient art.

Other stores have strange shingles that smack of Bohemia, but they do a land-office business in summer. Cabbages and Kings, Ltd., Stella's Dry Goods Store, Carmel Oriental Shop, Powder Puff Beauty Parlor, Mrs. Lawler, Chinese Art, The Cinderella Shop.—For Art's Sake.

Coming Events

This afternoon, 2:30 to 5, and until further notice,, exhibition of water colors by Mervin Carter, at Hagemeyer Studio.

Tuesday, October 7—Monthly meeting of city trustees.

Oct. 12 to 19—Series of Pageants and other events connected with Serra Pilgrimage.

October 16, 17, 18—The Nurserymaid of Heaven," by Thomas Wood Stevens. Theatre of the Golden Bough.

Oct. 15, 16, 18—"The Rose of the Rancho." Wednesday and Thursday in Monterey; Saturday, Forest Theatre.

Oct. 31, Nov. 1—A comedy, title to be announced. Theatre of the Golden Bough.

Nov. 14, 15—Premiere of "The Ship," by St. John Ervine. Theatre of the Golden Bough.

Nov. 28, 29—Three one-act plays: "'Op-o'-me-Thumb," by Richard Pryce and Frederick Fenner; "Teja," by Herman Sudermann; and "The Rider of Dreams," by Ridgley Torrence. Theatre of the Golden Bough.

Dec. 5, 6—"The Master Builder," by Henrik Ibsen. Theatre of the Golden Bough.

Dec. 19, 20—A group of short plays, titles to be announced. Theatre of the Golden Bough.

In only one short week now the crowds will be here. The slogan from now until next Sunday is "Clean Up." Carmel must put on its best bib and tucker to greet the hundreds of visitors within our gates.

Why We Celebrate Junipero Serra

One hundred and forty years ago, Junipero Serra died at the Mission San Carlos at Carmel, and was buried there with ceremonials befitting his illustrious career as pathfinder and missionary. The guns of Spanish ships of war in Monterey harbor and in the Presidio at Monterey sounded his requiem, and the Spanish authorities, officers, soldiers, sailors, as well as the Indians whom he had taught and served, did him reverence.

Father Junipero Serra, founder of the California Missions, was born in the town of Petra, in the Island of Majorica, November 24, 1713; in 1730 he took his first vows as a Franciscan. In 1750, he came to the new world, and for twenty years did missionary work in Mexico. It was in 1769, that Don Jose de Galvez, Visitador General from Spain, obtained Serra's aid in an expedition into the unknown lands of the north—what is now the State of California. That great effort, under the leadership of Governor Gaspar de Portola, finally, because of Serra's perseverance, resulted in the founding of the Mission San Carlos de Borromeo at Monterey—afterwards, in July, 1771, re-established on the Carmel river, as the Mission San Carlos del Rio Carmelo.

From then until the day of his death, August 25, 1784, Father Serra labored for the establishment of Missions north and south, until the trail from San Diego, San Luis Rey, Pala, San Juan Capistrano, San Gabriel, Los Angeles, San Fernando, Ventura, Santa Barbara, Santa Ynez, Lompoc, San Luis Obispo, San Miguel, King City, Soledad, San Juan Bautista, Santa Cruz, Santa Clara, Mission San Jose, San Francisco, San Rafael, and Sonoma—join with Monterey, Carmel-by-the-Sea, and Pacific Grove in inviting the people of the Nation to join in SERRA PILGRIMAGE to the tomb of California's pioneer, Father Junipero Serra, and to the Monterey Peninsula, where he lived, died and was buried.

King City to Have County Fair

Monterey county is at last to have a County Fair. It is for one day only—October 31, at King City. Carmel should be represented, showing what is taking place here. Prizes are being offered for the best exhibit. A complete list of prizes will be published later.

L. M. Schulte of Carmel Valley gives assurance that there will be a display from that district. The Salinas Valley towns are doing their utmost to make the Serra Pageant a success. Let us turn around and help them make this fair a success. Send 'em some pictures.

NOTICE OF MEETING

The regular monthly meeting of the Carmel Humane Society will be held on Wednesday, October 8, at half-past two o'clock, at Pine Inn. Important business.

The convention of the League of California Municipalities convenes in Monterey next week. An excellent business and pleasure program has been prepared. Notwithstanding this important educational event in civic matters takes place just over the hill, a representative of Carmel has not been appointed.

School Registration Begins Next Monday

The week of October 6 is appointed by law as Registration Week for children between the ages of three and eighteen years.

All parents or guardians of such children, residents of the school district, are required to visit the school between the hours of 9 to 4 in order to register them. There is a penalty for failure to do.

Hotel Del Monte Partly Destroyed

The main portion of Hotel Del Monte is a mass of charred and twisted ruins. At 3 o'clock last Saturday morning fire was discovered in a room below the tower. A chemical extinguisher proved insufficient and, fanned by the drafts in the many hallways and corridors, the flames soon got beyond control and spread rapidly.

The fire departments of Monterey and Pacific Grove rendered splendid service. Within three hours the fire was under control and the two wings of the great building were saved from destruction. This was not accomplished, however, without resorting to the use of three charges of dynamite. After each charge had exploded, the firemen rushed into the corridors to halt the flames with water and chemicals.

The loss to hotel property has been estimated at $1,500,000. Losses of personal property of officials, employees and guests is probably $250,000. Insurance to the amount of $1,000,000 was carried.

Over 700 guests were in the hotel, every room being occupied. Two conventions were going on, that of the semi-annual golf tournament of the Olympic Club, and that of the Electrical Jobbers.

The art gallery was destroyed, but the pictures were all saved, thanks to the assistance of many volunteer workers.

"Business as usual" is the slogan of Manager Carl Stanley and his army of employees. Rooms and bath with hot and cold water are available for guests, meals are served, bell-hops are hoping around, and the public is being served.

Plans for a larger, a finer, a more substantial Hotel Del Monte are already under way. Jack Beaumont, secretary of the Del Monte Properties Co., has expressed the opinion that the new unit will be erected on the site of the destroyed building. It will probably be of the California-Spanish type.

LITTLE PILGRIMS

Serra Pilgrimage plans will go forward unchanged regardless of the devastating fire at Hotel Del Monte is the assurance given by Perry Newberry, Pilgrimage director. "Not one item on the Pilgrimage week program will be dropped or materially altered because of the fire," said Newberry. "We will try to hold the ball somewhere on Del Monte grounds."

The Duke and Duchess of Alba, now in San Francisco, have expressed themselves as being overjoyed at the reception planned for them at Monterey. "It is a peculiar incident," said the Duke, "my uncle was Don Caspar Zunigar, count of Monterey and ruler of what was called New Spain."

A proposition has been closed with Frank E. Wood, Monterey accountant, to handle the financial affairs from now until the close of the Pilgrimage, when everything concerning finance will be cleared up, at a compensation of $300 for the entire job, a decidedly reasonable figure.

Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover and Mrs. Hoover will be honored guests on the Monterey Peninsula during Pilgrimage week. The Hoovers have accepted an invitation of Miss Maria Antonia Field, to be present at the ceremonies in Carmel Mission on Sunday, October 12, when the sarcophagus of Father Junipero Serra will be unveiled.

The Ticket books which are now on sale contain six dollars worth of admissions to all the pay events of Serra week. They are sold at the price of five dollars. Special solicitors are circulating the books. The events to which the books give admission include both the large night pageants, La Fiesta de Vaqueros, the dance contests, and the Spanish Joy Zone at the ball park.

Firemen Fight Food Ferociously

Wednesday night was Firemen's Night in Monterey. As a demonstration of inter-community good-will the affair at Mission hall, attended by scores of firemen of Monterey, Carmel, Pacific Grove, Salinas and the Monterey Presidio, and their friends, was a decided success.

As the men marched into the hall they were faced by rows and rows of flower-decorated and heavily-laden tables of good things to eat, tastefully and lovingly and efficiently prepared by the ladies of the Civic Club. Either a long detailed story or a short, snappy story might give some idea of what those soldiers and firemen did to the food. We'll leave it to the readers' imagination.

Not the least interesting part of the long program, conducted by Toastmaster Emmet McMenamin, was the music and speech-making. Among those who spoke were Carmel Martin, Rev. R. M. Mestres, Judge Fred W. Treat, W. L. Overstreet, Mayors B. F. Wright, W. T. Kibbler and W. J. Gould, Fire Chief Parker, Colonel James Breese and others.

Tokens of esteem and gratitude were presented to the various units as follows: To Fire Chief William Parker, a gold watch; presentation by Emmet McMenamin. Radio sets to Monterey firemen and to men of the 11th Cavalry; presentation by Allen Griffin. Loving cups to firemen of Carmel, Pacific Grove and Salinas; presentation by Marcy Woods.

"Shore Acres" to Be Very Realistic

The script and the parts of "Shore Acres," James A. Herne's famous idyllic drama of New England life, have been received by Director John Northern Hilliard, who has already begun the work of casting and organizing a producing staff. He hopes to begin actual rehearsing the first of next week. He has already planned the stage-end of the production, and work will begin at once on the building of the sets. This work will be in charge of Dr. Alfred E. Burton, who built Mr. Hilliard's sets for "A Night at an Inn," "The Queen's Enemies" and the "Kismet" production on the Forest Theatre stage last year.

No better or more popular attraction than "Shore Acres" could have been chosen for opening the Arts and Crafts Theatre during Thanksgiving week. It is pre-eminently a Thanksgiving play. The Thanksgiving dinner in the second act is one of the most famous scenes in American drama. William Archer, the famous English critic, in reviewing "Shore Acres," said that it is one of the greatest, if not the greatest, American play. The reason for its vitality is that it is drama, not melodrama. It is a play of character rather than plot. Its story is simple and its complications come out of the characters rather than from the invention of the playwright.

Mr. Hilliard is peculiarly fitted to produce "Shore Acres." He saw the original production of the play at McVickers Theatre, Chicago, in the early nineties. He was with Mr. Herne in the capacity of publicity writer for two seasons, and is intimately acquainted with the minutiae of the play. He will closely follow the original manuscript of the play, which differs in one or two minor details from the acting version. He will also strictly adhere to the Herne tradition, for there is a Herne tradition in the theatre, just as there is a Shakespearean tradition and a Gilbert and Sullivan tradition, and the Arts and Crafts producer will follow this tradition in letter and spirit.

Juan California Pico, scion of Romaldo Pico, one time Mexican Governor of California, has arrived with his string of eleven bucking horses and bucking steers for the rodeo which will be an important part of the program for the Fiesta de Vaqueros to be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday afternoon of the week of the Pilgrimage.

Stevenson's Abiding Place in Monterey

Valentine Porter in September "Wee Acorn"

As we picked a fiery red flower from the mint in front of the old adobe house we thought of,

"Sing a song of seasons,
Something bright in all,
Flowers in the summer,
Fires in the fall,"

for we were standing beside the gate where many a time Robert Louis Stevenson had passed in and out. Many other verses of his came to our minds. One of us recalled, "Up in a Swing," another, "My Ship and I." We quoted "Bed in Summer," "The Land of the Story Books," "The Land of the Counterpane," "The Lamp Lighter" and "Foreign Lands." As we stood there in the warm sunshine and watched the butterflies and bees fluttering and darting from flower to flower, we thought of Stevenson's words:

"Great is the sun and wide he goes,
Through empty heavens without repose;
To please the child, to paint the rose,
The gardener of the world, he goes."

We chanted in a chorus:

"Oh wind a-blowing all day long,
Oh wind that sings so loud a song."

As our pictures were being taken in front of the house, we all recited:

"The world is so full of a number of things,
I'm sure we should all be as happy as kings."

The house is made of adobe and is quite large. In front of it are two mint bushes. The place has an unkept appearance; stray animals are roaming around, and papers lying about.

When one visits such a loved poet's home it is nice to find a well-kept place. With very little trouble the place could be made to look a great deal better. This would be only a small way in which to show our appreciation of one who has given so much happiness to children and grown people.

Stevenson lived in Monterey from September to December, 1879. Writing of the Monterey beach he says: "I watched the tiny sandpipers and the huge Pacific seas." He must have still had a memory of the blue skies and sandy beaches of Monterey when writing "When I Was Down Beside the Sea" and his other verses of the "Child's Garden of Verses," which he began in 1881 and completed and published in 1885. When finishing them he was suffering greatly from hemorrhage and had his right arm bound to his side and so he wrote with his left. Stevenson died among the natives of Samoa.

David Starr Jordan gives an interesting account of his visit to Stevenson's Samoan home in his book, "The Days of a Man."

To show their love for "Tusitala" (Teller of Tales) as they called him, the natives, with their own hands, built a road leading to Vailima ("Five Waters"), Stevenson's old home. The name of the road is "The Road of Loving Heart."

When he died Stevenson was carried to the top of Mt. Vaea and laid to rest. Dr. Jordan speaks of visiting his tomb which is made of cemented lava. On one side is a bronze tablet upon which is engraved the noble "Requiem," Stevenson himself wrote:

"Under the wide and starry sky
Dig my grave and let me lie;
Glad did I live, and gladly die,
And I lay me down with a will."

This note of content expresses Stevenson.

One of the reasons he is so loved by all is that wherever he made his home he brought happiness to others.

Just an Artist to Exhibit Here

By Frank A. Gregory

Mervin Carter, a number of whose pictures will be on display at the Johan Hagemeyer studio for the next ten days, is an artist. Notwithstanding its apparent obviousness, that, in this day of self-conscious artistic effort, is a rare phenomenon.

We are, of course, liberally supplied with painters and painting craftsmen preoccupied with producing pictures, many of them theorists engaged violently in expressing theories. Mr. Carter has no theories, no studied attitudes of any sort. In other words, I do not think that he wishes to be "taken seriously"—that is to say, to be identified with any particular movement, or catalogued in any way. His one purpose, as far as any artist can be said to have a purpose, is, I feel, to create — or rather, to express—externally (and as it happens, decoratively) what lies at the depths of his personality regardless of all possible intellect or other secondary considerations. Even "subjects" are thus from his point of view unessential.

Briefly, then, Mr. Carter's work is quite unselfconscious and altogether inevitable. The many fine qualities of his work will be readily apparent to those possessing instinctively the peculiar sensibility of response to genuine aesthetic pleasure; and I think, were he to consciously address himself to any audience at all, it would be to those who enjoy works of art quite naturally and spontaneously—as most of us enjoy dancing (and some of us, drinking).

Of these there are, I believe, a number in the Carmel vicinity, and those anxious to see a collection of unusual pictures by an artist of singular subtlety of feeling, color and design will be well rewarded by at least one visit.

Mr. Carter is a native of England; a fact which I think is of manifest significance. This has to my mind given his work a distinct lyrical tenderness and delicacy. In fact, all of his pictures are informed with rare poetical charm.

Last Wednesday morning Charles T. Hecker appeared before City Clerk Saidee Van Brower and was sworn in as Recorder, vice J. W. Hand, resigned. The compensation of the office was readjusted, so that the pay will be $10 a month, plus 10 per cent of all fines.

I Thank You

At the close of my first year of residence in the United States I wish to take occasion to thank all the dear people of Carmel, known and unknown, who have encouraged and assisted me in making my venture at "Holiday Inn" a success.

ANNA PODIEN,
Holiday Inn.

Serra Week Play at the Golden Bough

Rehearsals for the Theatre of the Golden Bough's production for Pilgrimage Week, "The Nursery Maid of Heaven," are being held daily, afternoon and evening, under the direction of Edward Kuster.

Seat reservations are being made by mail from the bay cities, San Jose, Palo Alto, Santa Barbara and elsewhere. Sold-out houses are probable, since the theatre's capacity is limited to its regular seeting of four hundred.

The cast includes Marian Taylor, Adele Bechdolt, Dorothy Woodward, Thomas Bickle, Mae Harris Anson, Katharine Renshaw, Austin James, Helena Conger, Ruth Kuster, Gertrude Prince, Constance Heron, Jadwiga Noskowiak, George Ball, Gwyneth Willner, Virginia Burton, Roberta Leitch, Isabel Walker, Ethel Walker, Rhoda Johnson, Grace Wickham, Merle Coffey, Vere Basham, Gertrude Gerrish, Florence Edler, Evelyn Arne, and others.

Carmel's beautiful playhouse is undergoing a transformation, in its entirety, into a mediaeval convent, and in the early stages of the building or the settings, which are in charge of William Gaskin, the theatre has already taken on a serene new beauty that presages a beautiful production of Stevens' lovely miracle play. The design and making of the costumes are in care of Rhoda Johnson.

The play was withheld from the summer program of the Golden Bough because of its peculiar fitness for presentation during the Serra Pilgrimage. It is one of the Drama League prize plays for the Belasco competition of 1924, and is said to be the finest example of this type of drama yet written by an American.

The production will run three nights — October 16, 17, 18.

If the Pine Cone is not up to the usual standard this week, there are extenuating circumstances. The editor and his wife have been so overwhelmed receiving congratulations on the birth of a grandson that the morale of the office was all "pied up." The new arrival is DeWitt III, son of Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt Appleton II.

TAXES AND CHARITY

(Contributed)

A self-respecting town votes and payes its taxes cheerfully, and gives intelligent attention to the expenditure of the tax money.

"Drives," Community Chests, charitable organizations, etc., should not be necessary except in emergency calls from outside and the more rare ones from within.

Carmel has, at present, no need for the so-called charities, which are usually only the back-fire to community neglect and inefficiency. So far, taxes, neighborliness and individual resourcefulness have covered Carmel's material needs. But there is a class of residents in Carmel, few of whom came of their own will, who are not provided for in the tax lists, frequently unneighbored and because of their long dependence on man, lacking in resourcefulness, meaning horses, dogs, cats and other domestic animals, who now, thanks to wise legislation, have "animal rights" in every state in the Union.

On the Carmel town books there is an ordinance which declares a tax upon dogs, but it has been found more expensive to collect this tax than to disregard the ordinance. The Carmel Humane Society, our only local "charitable" organization (and may we never need others), has offered without salary to collect these taxes, providing the funds so collected may be used by them to care for animals in difficulties.

What do you think about it?

Markham's Appreciation

Dr. Henry Meade Bland of San Jose, who has recently written and published "Stevenson's California," has received a letter from Edwin Markham, expressing his appreciation of the volume and his joy over the good news of the literary prosperity of Dr. Bland, whose poems are in demand for literary anthologists.

Mr. Markham tells of his plan to bring out an anthology of his own next year, as none of the volumes on the library shelves exactly satisfy him. He asks permission to include in it two poems by Dr. Bland—lines to Robert Louis Stevenson and a poem on the flying geese of the far west.

NOTES

The Sibylline books were a set of oracular writings which contained the history of the Roman State. They were burned in 404 and 408 A. D. An air of mystery has surrounded them because they were only consulted by members of the senate on special occasions, and whether they contained directions received from the gods or only predictions will always be a matter of conjecture.

The first volume of a revised dictionary of the French language has recently been finished by the French Academy. The volume which contains the letters from A to H has taken forty-six years to complete, having been started in 1878. If an equal amount of time is required to complete the remaining seventeen letters, it will take a century to finish the work.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Jepson of Los Angeles were here over last week-end, visiting the Misses Smith of the Mission Tea House, who are cousins of Mrs. Jepson. The Jepsons have been motoring through Yellowstone Park.

FREE MUSIC

It is significant that the deepest joys in Carmel can never be exploited or sold, chiefly because these joys depend largely upon the individual capacity to respond to them.

How many of you have thrilled to the long, shrill and mournful howl of the coyotes at night and laughed with the mad glee in which the valley dogs rush out to drive off these intruders?

Of course, this brings no joy to the weary farmer with chickens and young animals to protect, but after all does he not, perhaps, respond to the taunting, terrifying challenge, the "call of the wild"?

Do you never want to run to the hills yourself and howl at an encroaching world? Again, would you not sometimes like to be a good watch dog, free to chase off noisy enemies to your communities' simplicity and hominess?

Personally, I would miss the coyote concerts far more than I miss grand opera or radio programs.

Anne Bosworth Green has written a pony story. It is a neat little volume entitled "Greylight."

Greylight is a silvery white Shetland pony who comes to live with a little girl and her wise mother in a beautiful town near the sea. Mrs. Greene knows horses well, has bred, raised and managed them, and the book is full of the love of good horsemanship. But not ostentatiously so, for one knows and loves horses better and feels a kinship and strong sympathy for them after reading this book. The amusing, delightful pony and the beautiful mare the grown lady rides are as interesting as "Black Beauty." It is such a tale as a child reads and reads again and always remembers. Boys and girls from nine to twelve will enjoy it immensely. Mrs. Greene owns a herd of Shelties on a Vermont farm which figures largely in her delightful book, "The Lone Winter," and little Greylight is drawn from life.

MAD DOG

New York, Sept. 11—A motorist passing through Madison yesterday reported to the police headquarters that a "mad dog" had rushed at his automobile, and the dog looked like a collie. Patrolman Dawling and Farrell were sent out. They returned with no dog. A second motorist reported that a big, brown collie, seemingly mad, had dashed at his car. Then Chief Johnson, with the two patrolmen, set out to capture the beast. They found Jim near the estate of John Jones, at Convent, barking and chasing the passing machines and having the time of his dog life.

When called the collie raced up to the chief, wagging his tail as though he had been looking for him a long, long time. But when the chief drew his revolver, Jim sat down on his tail and with his head at an angle looked worried, amazed and perplexed.

"Sergeant," said the chief, "this dog * * I want * * er, let us return to the station house."

"Yessir," replied the sergeant; and back they went, Jim standing in the back of the flivver with his nose to the wind.

So, instead of meeting death, Jim found a home and a kindly faced master who has watched over the community for many years.

PINE NEEDELS

Paul C. Wilbur is here to pursue his work in connection with the Carnegie Institution. Wilbur is a son of the secretary of the navy. His wife is here also.

Mrs. Helen Sterling is here to supervise the decorating and furnishing of her home in Carmel Woods. She will be here until the end of the year, when she departs on a European trip.

With the removal of Wade Stewart to Lane Hospital in San Francisco high hopes are entertained for his complete recovery. The able secretary of the local building trades council has been ill several weeks.

Mrs. Robert N. Tooker of Berkeley motored down for the week-end with her sister, Mrs. Lester Fulton of Chicago and her family. They are visiting Mrs. J. L. Fulton at The Anchorage, on North Casanova St.

News comes from Soledad that on Sept. 16th twin boys were presented to Johnny Machado. Everyone knew Johnny when he drove the Carmel-Monterey stage. The boys are named John Arlo and William Dean Machado.

Across San Curlos Highway at Ocean Avenue stretches a large cloth sign. It reads: "Housing Headquarters over the Postoffice, open 8 a. m. to 12 p. m." If you have a room for rent during Pilgrimage Week, list it with the committee.

Mrs. J. G. Hooper, chairman of the committee on the sale of Serra Pilgrimage tickets, has called a meeting at 2:30 today at Pine Inn. Plans will be formulated and captains of divisions appointed to go over the top with Carmel's quota in ticket sales for the week's events.

"Do Rats Talk to Each Other?" Asks Mr. M. Batty, R. I.

"I got five cakes of Rat-Snap and threw pieces around feed store. Got about half a dozen dead rats a day for two solid weeks. Suddenly, they got fewer Now we haven't any. Who told them about Rat-Snap." Rats dry up and leave no smell. Three sizes: 35c, 65c, $1.25.

California Has First Poetry Theatre

With the opening of the "Playhouse of the Arts" in the Civic Center, San Francisco, October 15, California will be the first place to have a "poetry theater," for though the "Playhouse" is to be concerned with other dramatic forms its primary activity will be that of staging poetry, utilizing the devices of the modern theater and the correlated arts to present poetry. Hedwiga Reicher is launching this poetry theater after having originated and tested out the idea in Oakland, Hollywood, Los Angeles and during the last summer at the Theater of the Golden Bough in Carmel.

In speaking of the unique venture, Miss Reicher said: "This new phase of dramatic expression should not be compared to the usual form of dramatization which freely changes the text of the original to suit the needs of the interpreter. Nor should it be regarded as a form of elocution. Rather it calls into wider service the arts of lighting, music, architecture, the dance and all the knowledge of the modern stage to better present and enhance the work of the poet as it comes from his pen. From my experience in staging these works of our modern poets, aside from being an artistic venture it will broaden and stimulate the interest of a larger public in poetry and it will materially affect the modern poet's form once he knows that his words is to be presented in this new manner."

As a prelude to these public performances to come out of the laboratory later, Miss Reicher will herself give at the Fairmont hotel a dramatic reading of Oscar Wilde's "Salome" on the afternoon of October 3.

Among the nationally known artists and poets who have indorsed the movement to stage poetry are Edwin Markham, Edgar Lee Masters, James Oppenheim, Theodore Dreiser, Otis Skinner, Charles Hanson Towne, Jessie B. Rittenhouse, Harriet Monroe.

Pine Needles

Evidently the Thomas W. Morgan communication in last week's Pine Cone is bringing results. During this week the Carmel Fire Department has received offers of equipment and money from the following: Carmel Boys' Club, Mrs. J. G. Hooper, Captain and Mrs. C. N. Offley and Mrs. Bertha Newberry.

Higher thought services will be held at the Mansfield-Wilson cottage on Dolores street, between Eighth and Ninth avenues at 2:30 tomorrow. Subject of lecture: "By What Authority?" Unity study class on Thursday at 8 p.m.

Houses built by Samuel J. Miller recently: Small cottage on Dolores and Fourth for Miss Stella Guichard; a five-room cottage on San Carlos near Fourth for Mrs. Montague of Oroville, interior and exterior painting done by R. F. Ohm.

Mrs. E. L. Bartlett is enjoying a ten-day vacation in the bay cities, visiting friends. She was accompanied as far as San Jose by her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Chamberlin, who remained over night in that city, returning to Carmel on Tuesday.

Mrs. Gertrude Prince went up to San Francisco last Saturday to meet her son David, returning from a five weeks' trip to Honolulu. The trip did the young man a world of good. He has recovered his health and will resume his studies at Stanford.

The Los Angeles Times correspondent on the peninsula during Pilgrimage Week will be Miss Neeta Marquis, who will telegraph a daily story to her paper. Miss Marquis, who is a relative of Don Marquis, the well-known New York newspaper man, will be a guest of the Ralph Davison Millers while here.

Mr. and Mrs. John Weir of Berkeley were recent guests of the Fenton P. Fosters.

A falling boulder of chalk rock has put Joe Machado out of business and to bed with a broken leg. He is getting along nicely.

The Noah Whitneys have returned from their sojourn abroad, and it is probable they will take up their residence here again.

The "Yellow Lantern" Tavern is closed. The proprietress, Mrs. Carroll, will serve light lunches at her home, Sixth and Dolores.

Mrs. Clara Lawler is in the east, and during her absence the shop in the court of the Golden Bough is in charge of Mrs. Sidney Yard.

"Prevention of Juvenile Crime" is the subject of an address to be delivered by Ney Otis, probation officer, at the Carmel church tomorrow evening.

After a most enjoyable honeymoon at Carmel Highlands, Benjamin Hampton, and his wife have gone to Los Angeles. Hampton is a motion picture producer, and his bride is Clara Adams, screen actress.

The city trustees will meet next Monday. Among other business to be transacted, award of contract will probably be made for sewer construction. At any rate, the bids will be read and considered.

In another column, the Pine Cone prints the advertisement of Sherman, Clay & Co., California's pioneer music house, in which announcement is made of the establishment of a sub-branch here. Phil Fuhrman will be the local representative.

Visitors here over the last week-end were Miss Margery Fisher of San Jose, and Miss Alice Seckels of San Francisco. They registered at Highlands Inn. Miss Seckels promotes the matinee musical at the Fairmont. Miss Fisher is a well-known violinist.

At his lodge in Carmel Woods, Paul Meyers entertained a group of golfers down for the Olympic Club tournament at Del Monte over the last week-end, comprising Dan Burbank, Bill Benson, and George Chinn. Dan Burbank is none other than the old Stanford graduate manager, who is now trying to live down his hectic past, and refuses longer to answer to the name of "Doc."

Chop Suey Saturdays and Sundays at Curtis'.

Mrs. Lillian Carroll of the Yellow Lantern spent the week in San Francisco.

Mrs. E. K. Blood motored to Fresno last Sunday for a week's visit with relatives.

Miss Rebekah Narvaez is spending two weeks in Los Angeles visiting relatives and friends.

A recent visitor in Carmel was Norman Johnson of the editorial staff of the Pasadena Star.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Blethen spent the week-end at Highlands Inn. Mr. Blethen has severed his connection with the Vanderbilt newspaper enterprises.

Johan Hagemeyer was in San Francisco this week to arrange for exhibits of his work in the International Solon in San Francisco and in the Municpal Auditorium in Oakland. At the Hagemeyer studio here there will shortly be shown the watercolors of Mervin Carter of Sausalito.

Mr. and Mrs. George Jepson, recently married in Los Angeles, spent the week-end here with Mrs. Jepson's cousin, Miss Isabel Smith, sister of Miss Mary Smith, owner of the Mission Tea Room. Little Bobby Zittle, son of Mrs. Jepson, who has been spending the summer with Miss Isabel Smith, returned with them.
